

Case 19

Random NPC Conversation

Nathan Fowler

A: Remember the bombings during the world cup?

B: Of course. Why do you ask?

A: Well last week they arrested 36 people from 7 different countries.

B: No shit.

A: Yeah. Good thing too.

B: Seriously.

A: I don't know why we were attacked though, it's the Americans they hate so much.

B: Did they know it was terrorists?

A: Yeah, one of the guys said he was trained by al-Qaida, on top of the fact that al-Shabab already claimed responsibility.

B: That's unbelievable.

A: Yeah, Mugira said that al-Qaida is involved, but the planning was done in Somalia.

B: Somalia? So al-Shaba were the real ones behind it. Why would they attack us though.

A: Because of our involvement with the African Union peacekeeping mission in Mogadishu.

B: Seriously!? Wasn't Wemusa involved with that?

A: Yeah I think so.

B: Damn. They must've really pissed those guys off if they wanted to retaliate against us like that.

A: Yeah, but they're a terrorist group. It's what they do.

B: Guess you're right. I still blame America though for stirring up so much shit over the last few years.

A: Yeah, well the Americans can fuck off. They did some good things, but at this point they're just causing problems.

B: Yeah, and that new president... eh, what's name.

A: Obama?

B: Yeah, he was supposed to turn everything around, but he barely did a damn thing.

A: Too true my friend. All right, time to move. Sergeant will have our heads if we stand here any longer.

B: All right. Such a prick.

A: Aye.

This conversation involves modern real world events that should hopefully take the player by surprise. If they had not heard about the bombings, hopefully they will remember this conversation and look into it in the future.

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/africaandindianocean/uganda/7884653/Scores-die-in-Uganda-World-Cup-final-bombings.html>